

1982

Subway station Gerdesiaweg, Rotterdam, October 2000
3 x 14 x 110 m. computer controlled lights, amplifier

A light and sound installation shown in a subway station that was due to be renovated. The existing light boxes in the interior are transformed into a light organ. The light reacts to music played over the intercom. Hit songs are played from 1982, the year the station was built. The replacement of the entire interior simultaneously marks the end of the installation, which is meant as an homage to the year of the station's construction.
